For Students

They will also sign up for a speechanddebate.org account using the same process, except that they'll select "Student" once they log in and request to be linked to your school. You'll have to approve each link request to add them to your roster.

Students and judges will also sign up for a tabroom.com account in order to participate in tournaments. They should fill out the Non-NSDA Member section below the coach/advisor signup. (Even if they are technically NSDA members.) They'll also need to request a link to the school on tabroom.

That gives you two separate places to manage your roster, but you can simplify things by using the "import roster" feature on tabroom.com to import your roster from speechanddebate.org. I find it's always easier to have students create their speechanddebate.org accounts first, then wait for you to import the roster to tabroom.com before trying to create tabroom.com accounts.

Judges/parents do not need a speechanddebate.org account - just the tabroom.com one.

School district student emails sometimes don't "get along" with tabroom.com. If they are having trouble getting confirmation emails and creating accounts with a school email, they should try a personal email instead, such as gmail.
